Unaussprechlichen Kulten!?! Some Death Metal maniacs should yet know the name. The Chilean Band already exists since 1999 and has also made a name in Death Metal Underground. Their current album was released as LP in the end of June and now it goes on sale as CD on 16th June. This much can be revealed now: This is a real Underground gem. The album presents pure Old school Death Metal that stands much more out by its dark atmosphere created by the band with this album rather than special technical finesse or innovation.

First of all the album starts rather lowly and dark with the song "Prologue" that introduces the album very well and makes immediately clear where the journey will lead us. The gracious Old school Death Metal fan gets everything the heart desires in the further progress of the music. Dissonant solos and riffs press straight as well as the variation between hammering blast beats, up-tempo passages and slowly dark parts coupled with a creaking Old school production. However, this is not in the least negative but rather declare additional charm.

What is special about the album is that there rises an analogy (if only a distant) to Black Metal by a tremolo riff. Also a dark atmosphere is created especially attracted in the song "Ceremony for Belial".

The text concept of the band lean most of all onto occultism and the writings of H. P. Lovecraft

Conclusion:

Maybe the description of the music doesn't sound especially spectacular but as I mentioned above the album doesn't either stands out by technical finesse or any innovations but rather simply by the dark atmosphere and the large helping of energy, heart and soul that the band has obviously invested into the album. Indeed, the duration could be a little bit longer because 29 minutes are a bit slender. Especially if one considers that this album is the first opus since the "People of the Monolid" in 2008. However, every Old school Death Metal maniac should take this album to heart one day.

It pays!
