Kickin Valentina from Georgia present us snotty and dirty rock with strong sleaze influences and pure rock'n'roll feeling with their great album "Super Atomic". The opener (after a short intro) "One my Side" shows already where the journey will take us. However, I miss that certain something of the opener that sticks strongly in one's memory. This is better in the next song, the first single release, that also includes a video with the title "Wrong Way". The song finds its way into the ears with simple and catchy sounds in the mid-tempo range. It just makes you tap your feet.

The next few songs awake memories of L.A. Guns or Sea Hags but one can also pick out influences of Little Caesar or Salty Dog. This is mainly due to the easy "sleazy" sounding vocals as the voice of frontman Joe Edwards is definitely the brand of the band. Of course, the well-placed guitar solos may not be missed and are fitted with a great flair of melody.

We have enough slam-dunks with the brilliant sing-along stunner "Get ready", the successful and luscious titlesong and the simply awesome song "Anita".

Conclusion:

Guitar, bass, drums and snotty vocals – Rock'n'Roll is ready. It can be that simple if one will listen to simply Hard Rock with Sleaze influences that totally kick asses. Kickin Valentina can decently convince in this genre. One who treasures the already named bands as comparison, should definitely listen to it. Even though "Super Atomic" isn't the ultimate high flyer of the rock'n'roll history, it still kicks enough asses to please good.
