If the notebook had only a few notes, one would assume that the album has made a rather small impression. The new album of the Death Metal band Dehumanized proves that this may not always be the case.

The good piece is called "Beyond The Mind" and allows an inside view into the oeuvre of the New York based band of nearly 40 minutes. Rather inconspicuous riffs introduce the opener "Worthless Prosperity", but thereafter the song goes faster as typical for this genre. Certainly it isn't trivial banging that blows up in one's face but rather rich in variety. There are a lot of changes of pace from down beat to fast blast beats giving the whole stuff an appealing dynamic. This is topped off with cunning and sophisticated guitar work. However, the music never loses its brutality during the variations. Moreover Michael Centrone impresses with his brutal deep growls. On top the great basslines stick out now and then.

It makes no sense to highlight any songs as "Beyond The Mind" is simply good considered as complete work. It is made to let you bang again and again. And the moment when you think you can make a little break, you can only continue breaking your neck. It is just one of these albums that you like to listen to when needing hard, loud and fast music that will delight you. It doesn't matter if the songs are two or five minutes long, the main thing is what fires like hell. Dehumanized has created such an opus.

Conclusion:

Dehumanized has delivered, enjoy "Beyond the Mind".
